Dear Red,

I am not sure that I ever thanked you for having your publisher send me, last Spring, a copy of "Who Speaks for the Negro?"

You have made another eloquent and penetrating contribution to the understanding of race relations in the U.S.

Thank you: primarily for that contribution; but also for your thoughtfulness in sending me a copy of "Who Speaks"

Sincerely,

Morton

Excuse the address,
but I do not have it
here at the office.
